The impact of computers on all realms of Chemistry has been one of the most important factors in the development of this science during the last years. In recognition of this fact, in 1971, the "First International Conference on Computers in Chemical Research and Education", was held at DeKalb, Illinois, USA. A second Conference took place in Ljubljana, Yugoslavia in 1973 and this third Conference in Caracas, Venezuela, in 1976. The aim of these conferences was to provide a high level forum for the leading researchers to exchange information at the frontiers of present day computer applications to the different fields of Chemistry. The present "Third International Conference on Computers in Chemical Research, Education and Technology", whose proceedings are published in the present volume, was conceived, by means of a series of invited lectures, as a survey of the present-day state of the art in some of the most relevant areas of computer applications in Chemistry.

The much-anticipated anthology on Plato'sTimaeus-Plato's singular dialogue on the creation of the universe, the nature of the physical world, and the place of persons in the cosmos-examining all dimensions of one of the most important books in Western Civilization: its philosophy, cosmology, science, and ethics, its literary aspects and reception. Contributions come from leading scholars in their respective fields, including Sir Anthony Leggett, 2003 Nobel Laureate for Physics. Parts of or earlier versions of these papers were first presented at the Timaeus Conference, held at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in September of 2007.To this day, Plato's Timaeus grounds the form of ethical and political thinking called Natural Law-the view that there are norms in nature that provide the patterns for our actions and ground the objectivity of human values. Beyond the intellectual content of the dialogue's core, its literary frame is also the source of the myth of Atlantis, giving the West the concept of the "lost world."
