Mark Strand was US Poet Laureate between 1990-91 and won the Pulitzer Prize for Blizzard of One in 1998. In this beautiful and philosophical collection, he tells us that nothing we strive for really matters, that everything just comes and goes, like wind, like breath. And what makes life precious are moments of reflection, moments of wonder.

Poems by Mark Strand - Academy of American Poets

Strand's early collections of poetry, including Reasons for Moving (1968), made his reputation as a dark, brooding poet haunted by death, but Strand himself does not find them "especially dark," he told Thomas. "I find them evenly lit," he continued. Critics, however, discerned a shift with Strand's third book.

First-time readers may be surprised at the short length of the volume, which is Strand's first collected edition, but they may also find it absorbing in its focus on first and last things. For all the streamlined sadness of his dreamlike domain, Strand remains aware of other poets, which is particularly evident in his homages, translations, and elegies.

Mark Strand - Wikipedia

'Eating Poetry' by Mark Strand is a six stanza poem that is divided into sets of three lines, known as tercets. These tercets do not follow a specific rhyme scheme or metrical pattern, meaning that they are written in free verse. But, despite how it sounds, this doesn't mean the poem is without any sort of structure at all.
