Apicius is a collection of Roman cookery recipes, thought to have been compiled in the 1st century AD and written in a language in many ways closer to Vulgar than to Classical Latin; later recipes using Vulgar Latin were added to earlier recipes using Classical Latin. Based on textual analysis, the food scholar Bruno Laurioux believes that the surviving version only dates from the fifth century: "The history of De Re Coquinaria indeed belongs then to the Middle Ages". The name "Apicius" is taken
