Where Shikwa was a plaint of a common Muslim of today, the Jawab e Shikwa was the reply of the God Almighty to the woes of suffering Muslims. Where John Milton wrote Paradise Lost to “Justify ways of God to men”, Iqbal wrote the poem to do the same but this time within the context of the woes of Muslims and their complaints. The meanings and scope of this poem could even be spread beyond Muslim sense but since the Shikwa was by a Muslim in the historical prospect; therefore, we tend to ...

In these two poems, Iqbal discusses the fall of the Muslim ummah, probes into its causes, shows his bereavement and offers a solution along with a message of hope. In the first poem, Iqbal complains to God about the deplorable condition of the Muslim world and society and prays for divine help. In the second poem, which he wrote a few years later, he relays a response to the complaints on behalf of God. In elaborating the causes of the rise and fall of the Muslim ummah, Iqbal hoped that Muslims would use them as a springboard for reviving their former status of prestige and glory. Iqbal's poetry has such great variety that several anthologies of it could be compiled, each quite different from the other. The series aims at introducing Iqbal's poetry to the English-speaking world. While scholars and students will benefit from the work, it is hoped that general readers, both Muslim and non-Muslim, will find this series useful and interesting.
